LA MAISON TRUDON

A Unique History

TRUDON is best known as the world's oldest candlemaker still active today. Founded by the Trudon family, it has provided candles to France's cathedrals and nobility since 1643. Most famously, the Trudons supplied all the candles of Versailles on a daily basis, serving the Sun King, Louis XIV, during his reign – and later Napoleon.

The Paris-based company maintains a serious cult following of A-listers and designers, including fashion maestro Giambattista Valli, who collaborated with the brand on candles with floral notes that evoke the Amalfi Coast, as well as Olivier Rousteign, Creative Director of Maison Balmain.

THE TRUDON CANDLE

Wicks are made of cotton. There are many different types of wick, characterized by their braiding and diameter. They are selected according to the shape and size of the containers, as well as the burning characteristics of each fragrance.

The glasses are unique and handcrafted in Tuscany. Their shape is inspired by that of a champagne bucket.

The beehive symbol pays tribute to the bees that have contributed to the quality of Trudon candles over the centuries.

Created in partnership with renowned perfumers, Trudon fragrances are developed with particular care. From the choice of raw materials, through testing in the House laboratory, to the waxing process, there are many stages in the birth of a perfume.

The wax formulas used in Trudon candles have been specially developed to give them an exceptional smell and burning quality. Properly cared for, a Trudon candle does not smoke and leaves virtually no deposits on the glass when it burns.

Our motto 'Deo regique laborant' means: 'The bees work for God and the King'.

All our candles are made in the Trudon workshops in Normandy.

Our coat of arms is inspired by a bas-relief on the site of the former Manufacture Royale de Cire, once owned by the Trudon family in Antony, near Paris, and now owned by the Church. The site now houses the congregation of the Sisters of Saint Joseph of Cluny.

OUR ICONIC SCENTS

ABD EL KADER

Mint Tea

A breeze of freedom, coming from both the coast of Mascara and the mountains, sweeps up the fresh green scents of mint, the fiery spirit of battles, the warm, peppery air of ginger, and the fragrance of tea and tobacco from the Ouled Nail.

ERNESTO

Leather and Tobacco

A hotel in Havana, under the unyielding sun of the revolution: the masculine, handcrafted scents of leather and tobacco blend with the waxy silence of the woodwork. In the coolness of the shade shine the fierce smiles, the smoke of cigars, and the barrels of rifles.

OUR ICONIC SCENTS

CYRNOS

Mediterranean Aromas

A villa with a view, the very sunlit Cynos welcomes the crème de la crème of a flamboyant turn of the century in its aromatic, citrusy garden. Queens, poets, and artists gather there in the shade of fig trees and umbrella pines. Rocked by the air of Roquebrune, where the scents of lavender blend with the dry aromas of Provence, they enjoy the sweetness of life so typical of the blue Mediterranean shores.

GABRIEL

Gourmand Wood Fire

Gabriel heralds the warm late afternoons of winter. When the flames crackle and the scent of burning wood mingles with the aromas of home-cooked meals. A convivial fragrance that weaves happy, comforting memories.

OUR COLLECTION BELLES MATIERES

MADURAI

The splendor of Indian jasmine

The Duke of Tuscany introduced jasmine to India around 1690, and since then its fresh or dried flowers, native to Arabia, have nourished Indian culture in its myths and daily rituals. Here, Jasminum sambac is used to perfume tea or tied in garlands; there, on the outskirts of temples, it becomes an offering.

Founded in 1643, the House of Trudon became famous for its candles, torches, and other lighting tapers. In 1719, the House of Trudon became the Manufacture Royale de Cire.
